Selectmen Dismiss Ainslie Case

Selectmen voted 2-0 last week to absolve Auxiliary Officer Lawrence Ainslie, Jr., of the charges brought against him in a recent hearing.

Selectman Mary Jeanette Murray moved to take no action against Ainslie who had been charged with unauthorized use of police files and the police log, improper dress, unauthorized use of a police radio and failure to make himself available for assignment. Chairman Arthur Clark voted in favor of the motion, while Selectman Henry Ainslie abstained in the decision on Ainslie, his nephew.

Lawrence Ainslie was present for the decision. After the vote, Murray warned him, "If the director (of Civil Defense) has any problems with you, then I will have to do a lot of serious consideration to make that kind of motion again."

Murray said later that she made the motion in part because "things were not presented through the proper channels." She also indicated leniency toward the charge of unauthorized use of a police radio. "We're all human and apt to forget to bring something back that we said we would," Murray said. She also noted that Ainslie had put in a long night at both a house fire and car accident — factors which she felt understandably delayed the return of the radio.

Sgt. John Rhodes of the Police Department submitted a letter to Selectmen reiterating his stance that he was "merely sustaining a fact" in substantiating the charges brought against Ainslie by Lee Adnews, Captain of the Auxiliary Police Force.

Rhodes stated, "I do not now nor had I before any intentions of making a recommendation as to a course of action against Ainslie."

According to all parties involved, the case is closed.

Cohasset In '79, A Look Ahead

Sharing a common desire to see the remodeling or preferably an altogether new town hall is Town Clerk Charles Marks. "I'd also like to see more people turn out for Town Meeting. We don't get a good percentage of the voters anymore."

Postmaster Gerard Keating looks to 1979 with much excitement for the experiment E-COM, Electronic Computer Originated Mail, to be used initially for businesses. "A strong effort will be made to increase efficiency to avoid any further rate increases in the near future. All of the postal employees of the Cohasset Post Office join in sending our sincere best wishes to both our customers and your fine newspaper for much success and happiness in the New Year."

State Representative and Selectman Mary Jeanette Murray wishes happiness and very good health for everyone. "We've got to get the government off our backs, control our own municipalities and somehow reduce taxes."

Harry Ritter, Harbor Master, wants to see the boat tax made more equitable. He also wants a more flexible attitude from the Conservation Commission on wetland protection, particularly for the salt marshes on Bailey's Creek.

Fewer fires, continued cooperation among the towns, and a new fire station on Route 3A are hoped for by Charles Piepenbrink, Chief of the Fire Department.

Superintendent of Schools John Maloney wishes to maintain the quality of education in the Cohasset public school system with a zero increase budget. He would also like clarification of state reimbursements to local school system and fully funded state mandated school programs.

The Mariner wants to thank you all for the thoughts, speculations and prophesies. Nobody can see beyond the moment, but we certainly hope that your comments for the new year come true.
